PREFACE

It is a matter of pride and privilege to note that on recognition of Hard Work , Sincerity , Dedication and sacrifice of the management, faculty , staff and students of Noorul Islam College of Engineering that Our college has been conferred with Deemed to be University status under section 3 of UGC Act 1956 vide Ministry of Human Resource Development , Government of India notification No.F.9-51/2004-U.3 dated 8th December 2008. Consequently , Noorul Islam University started functioning academically from July 2009.

Now it becomes necessary to frame the Regulations to assist our faculty as well the students by providing information that is essential for planning and pursuing the academic programs offered by the University. We have to therefore examine what kind of education and training our University must provide for our students in order that they may be prepared to cope up with technological, economical, social and political changes taking place around us, not only locally but globally. The accumulation of knowledge is not only concerned with nature of knowledge itself but of society and the ways human beings think and learn. The time of slow change and long enduring traditional methods of teaching and learning process is ended. The task of those framing and formulating the regulations concerned with admission, curriculum and syllabus, examinations, academic assessment and award of degree, quality improvement etc., is to find a way of utilizing the knowledge acquired in the class rooms and interpret the desires of the people and translate all into forms of societal developments.

Due care has therefore been taken while framing the regulations and curriculum and syllabus of Noorul Islam University by keeping the above in mind and also with the concept of learner - centric learning and learner centric class rooms. In other words, an important element of learner -centric class room and learner- centric learning is learner -centric curriculum which will create awareness within the learner .The awareness is what the learner will take away at the end of the course and is what will enable him or her to transfer the knowledge and skills developed with in the class room to real – life situations.

These regulations and procedures are published to assist our faculty as well the students by providing information that is essential for planning and pursuing the academic programs offered by the University. Continuing efforts will be made each year to revisit and improve these regulations in order to enhance the quality of the university's program and achievement of educational goals.

5. Curriculum and Syllabus

5.1 Curriculum

Curriculum Development can be defined as the systematic planning of what is taught and learned in Universities as reflected in courses of study and school programs. The primary focus of a curriculum is on what is to be taught and when, leaving to the teaching profession decisions as to how this should be done. In practice, however, there is no clear distinction between curriculum content and methodology - how a topic is taught often determines what is taught. For this reason, and for others, there is need to distinguish the official or planned curriculum - the formally approved program of study - from the de facto or lived (sometimes called hidden) curriculum - the "lessons" that are actually learned.

The main curricular developments were on two fronts: establishing sets of common or essential elements that formed the "basics for all," and providing for flexibility so that students might pursue individual interests and ambitions.

Critical major review of curriculum of a program shall be done by the respective Board of Studies (BOS) at regular intervals and approved by the Academic Council and Board of Management.

5.1.1 Choice Based Credit System (CBCS):

The University Regulations are based on CBCS. In this system, a Student has choice to Register for any additional Course or free elective (i.e., other than department electives) offered by the University and permitted by the Regulations.

In credit system, quantum of Work is measured in terms of credits. In this system, a Student has to Register to a set of Courses prescribed in the Curriculum, at the beginning of the semester. Then he/she earns credits by passing in each Course and obtaining a valid letter grade for the Course. Requirements for a particular Program are specified in terms of minimum number of credits to be earned.

a. Credits for a Course are based on number of instruction/contact hours be it lecture/tutorial/Practical per week. Credits are assigned to Theory, Practical, seminar, Project, etc. Board of Studies (BOS) of a department offering the Program stipulates the number of credits for each Course.

b. Credit assignment:- One credit is assigned to a Course for one contact hour of lecture/tutorial per week or two contact hours of Laboratory/Practical/Seminar/Project per week or one week of Industrial Training during semester breaks.

c. Course structure:- It consists of two types of Courses viz., Theory Courses without Practical component and Practical Courses having both Theory and Laboratory Training or Laboratory training only. Prerequisites, if any, for a Course offered in a semester are specified so that a Student may Register for the Course after satisfying such requirements. Prerequisites are normally assigned to elective Courses. There are no prerequisites for core Courses of a Program.

d. Program structure:

The duration of the M.Phil. programme shall be one year consisting of two semesters. The programmes shall commence from July. First semester final examination shall be conducted in January / February. The second semester final examinations shall be conducted in April / May.

Program structure consists of:-

- i. Departmental core Courses
- ii. Departmental electives
- iii. Dissertation

i. Departmental Core consists of basic and professional core Courses in the respective branch of study

ii. Departmental Electives are meant for specialization in the branch of study.

v. Dissertation is an inclusive component of a Program. Dissertation work shall be carried out by a Student under the guidance of a supervisor either within the University department(s) or in external organizations like Industries, Research Institutes/ Centers or other Academic Institutions recognized by the appropriate statutory bodies and approved by the BOM. In case of external organizations, a co-supervisor from such institutions is essential. The supervisor/co-supervisor may be from other related departments of the University also. supervisor/co-supervisor is normally fixed by mutual consent but recommended by the HOD and approved by the Dean. In the Dissertation Work, Student is expected to do an in depth study in his/her specialized area by doing a detailed literature survey, understanding different aspects of the problem, arriving at the status report in the area, carry out developmental and/or experimental Work, analyze and interpret the results to arrive at the conclusions. Presentations are inclusive components of a Program. These presentations are based on learnt investigation methodologies, concepts and techniques from the available relevant research literature, etc, critical correlation of Work of various authors/ researchers and results pertaining to the Project Work and their analysis. The Student should demonstrate that he/she has acquired both analytical and practical skills in the field of specialization. Interdisciplinary Projects are also encouraged.

e. Duration of a Programme:

Maximum and minimum numbers of semesters to complete the M.Phil. Program is as follows:
